

Sweden has always been one of the European countries that achieves the best results in terms of road safety. STR certainly contributed to these results. What are the main activities of your association?

STR consists of 750 companies. Driving licence training and road safety are our main activities.

EFA members are glad with your come back to our association. What prompted you to return to our network?

International cooperation is important. Together we can make a difference to achieve important goals in the fields of training and road safety.

EFA is pursuing the issue of code 78 on driving licences at a European level. We believe that a manual gearbox training certification at driving schools can enable a candidate to take the driving test on a vehicle with an automatic gearbox without limitations (Code 78). This helps the spread of electric or hybrid vehicles in driving schools and a greater ecological commitment also for future drivers. What is your point of view in this regard?

We believe that this is an important issue for the environment and adaptation to the vehicles of the future. We are really committed in this topic and we appreciate EFA involvement in this matter.
